Scouts Nancy McAden and Margie Norris at the card file in the county library.

Scouts Serve As Library Aides

Margie Norris and Nancy McAden, Senior Scouts, in girl Scout Troop 41, are serving as Library Aides as a community service project. Nancy and Margie completed their Five Point Program last June which consists of the following parts: Out of Doors, service, preparedness, knowledge of their Girl Scout Council and special hobbies. As a community service project, they have chosen to assist Mrs. Verna Conner and Mrs. A. R. Harwood, Jr., in the Appomattox County Library. As Library aides they may assist in doing the following:

1. Act as a page or a monitor in securing books from the shelves.
2. Shelve books.
3. Repair and clean books.
4. Conduct a story hour for children.
5. Give clerical assistance in the library office.
6. Give services at the front desk in checking books out and in.

The major service which Margie and Nancy have done is in helping to prepare books to be circulated into the county elementary schools. After the books have been chosen by Mrs. Conner or Mrs. Harwood, Margie and Nancy check them out to the schools — place them in boxes ready to go to either Spout Spring, Vera, Oakville, and Evergreen.

Library Aid services offer one a field of vocational exploration. Often women have combined library work with teaching. Library Science is a field that attracts many women and there is a constant demand for well-trained librarians throughout the country. Many business organizations maintain large libraries as well as do other institutions such as hospitals, techinal labs, etc.

Margie Norris entered Scouting about two years ago and has been a faithful and outstanding Senior Scout. Nancy McAden is completing her 5th year in Scouting; having received her Curved Bar in 1961 in Thomasville, N. C. with the troop with which she started. She has been active in rendering service in her troop here.As Library Aides, Margie and Nancy will give 30 hours of their time after school on Monday and Tuesday afternoons. Margie is planning to make this her career and is hoping to get as much experience as possible while in high school. The only school in Virginia which offers a BS Degree in Library Science is Madison College in Harrisonburg. There is also a Charles W. Dickinson Library Scholarship available to Virginia students who wish to pursue this career.

Nancy McAden is enjoying her service project in the library and knows that it will help her as she continues her education in the field of Medical Science after high school.
